About the TCNJ School of Business Women's Leadership Summit

The first Women's Leadership Summit (WLS) took place on November 9, 2011, and was originally titled "Women Take Charge: Building Leadership". Over the last 14 years, the WLS has evolved into what it is today.

The WLS is a collaborative and community-based event that brings together regional professionals, community members, and TCNJ students, faculty, and staff for a day of presentations, interactive workshops, networking, and reflection.

The Summit is designed to inspire, connect, and elevate women through powerful discussions, networking opportunities, and insights from leading professionals. The summit features inspirational keynotes, networking opportunities, interactive workshops and breakout sessions on topics like emotional intelligence, self-empowerment, and imposter syndrome. A notable tradition of the Summit is featuring keynote speakers who are authors and providing attendees with a copy of their book.

Previous keynote speakers have included:

- Sylvia Baffour, renowned speaker & emotional intelligence expert
- Dima Ghawi, Executive Coach
- Michele Meyer-Shipp, CEO of Dress for Success
- Laura Huang, Harvard Business School Professor
- Dr. Valerie Young, Co-Founder of the Imposter Syndrome Institute
- Natalie Molina Nino, CEO of Brava Investments
- Tiffany Dufu, Chief Leadership Office at Levo
